56TH HEAD OF THE SCHUYLKILL REGATTA

OCTOBER 24 & 25, 2026
PHILADELPHIA PA

Swing Ventures congratulates Alex Cook for his lifetime of contributions to rowing on the Schuylkill River.

We wish him a speedy recovery and hope he is back on the water soon.

With sincere good wishes,

John Chatzky and Swing Ventures

With sincere appreciation to University Barge Club, proud host of the Head of the Schuylkill Regatta for 56 years.

In 1970, three members of University Barge Club, located in the heart of Philadelphia's Boathouse Row, launched the idea for a new fall race. At a time when only elite, college and junior athletes competed in "head" or distance races, the newly established Head of the Schuylkill Regatta emphasized graduate oarsmen and opened racing to newly emerging masters' and womens' teams. An estimated 180 competitors participated in the first race. Now, the second largest two-day regatta, the HOSR is affectionately known as "America's Favorite Regatta."

University Barge Club (UBC) was founded in 1854 by ten members of the freshman class of the University of Pennsylvania, organized "for the purpose of instruction and improvement in, and enjoyment of, the art of rowing, and the cultivation of a friendly feeling in all of those who participate in this amusement and exercise." Today it boasts a robust masters program open to all women and men rowers and is home of the rowing programs for Springside Chestnut Hill Academy.

Purpose got us started. Passion keeps us going. Beyond the HOSR mission to conduct a safe and fair race on one of the most beautiful and challenging courses in the country, we pride ourselves on providing a unique and unforgettable regatta experience. We work year-round to give back to the community and lead efforts in sustainability. We showcase Philadelphia and the Schuylkill River, not only as the birthplace of American rowing, but in its continued role as one of the most significant rowing venues in the country and home to legends in our sport and those in the making.

While visiting the HOSR website he discovered our cover art competition. As an amateur artist who has designed several book covers about Irish rowing history and program covers for the Neptune Regattas he entered the cover art competition focusing his design around the Philadelphia skyline, the unique backdrop to rowing and regattas in the city.

HEAD OF THE SCHUYLKILL
REGATTA
EST. 1970 • PHILADELPHIA

Friends,

It is a great pleasure to welcome competitors and spectators from across the country and around the world to the 2026 Head of the Schuylkill Regatta. For 56 years, the HOSR has brought our community together, and I am thrilled to welcome you back for another unforgettable weekend.

Whether you are a first-time competitor, a seasoned rower seeking a challenging course or the opportunity to reunite with former teammates, a coach returning to familiar waters, a dedicated volunteer, or a spectator cheering from the riverbanks - YOU are an important part of the tradition of one of the most iconic head races in the country. Our regatta is more than a race. It is a celebration of competition, camaraderie, tradition, and the friendships that bring us back year after year.

This year is particularly exciting as Philadelphia celebrates the 250th anniversary of our nation. As the birthplace of American rowing, our city has a remarkable story to tell, and we are proud to be part of it. Through The Rowing History Project, a community initiative of the HOSR, we further our goal to preserve and share the people, objects, and stories that have shaped our sport. We invite you to visit our on-site interview booth to share your story. Whether you're a lifelong rower or a first-time spectator, your voice is part of the legacy we're building together.

Behind every successful regatta is an extraordinary community. To our steadfast volunteers, referees who travel from across the country, generous sponsors and partners, and the many organizations and individuals who support us, thank you. Your time, energy, and commitment make it possible to welcome athletes from near and far and deliver the Philadelphia rowing experience that has become a hallmark of the HOSR.

As you make your way along the river this weekend, I encourage you to take it all in. Be part of the community art mural, bring your appetite to some of Philly's best food trucks, shop and learn more from our partners in the vendor village, meet past and current US National Team members, and take pictures among the various backdrops of the regatta. Enjoy the competition, reconnect with old friends, make some new ones, explore our wonderful city, and appreciate the history that surrounds us. Whether you leave with a medal, a personal best, or simply a great story to tell, I hope your time at the HOSR is memorable.

On behalf of our Board of Directors and the entire HOSR team, thank you for being part of our 56th year. We are proud of where we have been, excited about where we are going, and grateful to share this incredible tradition with all of you.

As always, we love to hear from you, our biggest asset; please do not hesitate to reach out to info@hosr.org with any thoughts or ideas.

With gratitude,

Jennifer Wesson

WELCOME!

As Commissioner for Philadelphia Parks and Recreation it is my privilege to welcome competitors from around the globe, their coaches, friends and families, and thousands of spectators to Fairmount Park for the Head of the Schuylkill Regatta.

Fairmount Park, one of the largest urban park systems in the Nation, provides the perfect backdrop for athletes of all ages who will compete on the beautiful 2.5-mile headrace course. What began in 1970 as a small local race has grown into a widely celebrated rowing event bringing together athletes of all ages and skill levels —-from high school rowers experiencing their first competition, to seasoned athletes testing their skills, to masters rowers who demonstrate that rowing is, indeed, a sport of a lifetime.

The Schuylkill River has a long and storied history as a proving ground for world-class athletes and the success of this regatta has helped shine a spotlight on the sport and its deep connection and commitment to Philadelphia and Fairmount Park. As the Park's primary steward, Philadelphia Parks and Recreation is dedicated to providing competitors and coaches with a first-class racing venue and spectators with an exceptional experience.

We join with Regatta organizers to encourage competitors and spectators to embrace our Mayor's 'clean and green' policy by using reusable/refillable water bottles and packing out what you bring in. The Mayor's office, Philadelphia Parks & Recreation and the Head of the Schuylkill Regatta are working together to make this a litter-free event and continue to set an example for all regattas.

We take great pride in Philadelphia's rowing community, and we congratulate the Head of the Schuylkill's board of directors and regatta planning committee for producing the city's largest and most inclusive regatta, now in its 56th year.

Please take time to explore Fairmount Park and nearby. Don't forget to stroll along Boathouse Row and tour boathouses dating back more than 150 years. As always, we wish you a safe and enjoyable weekend in Philadelphia and along the beautiful and iconic Schuylkill River.

Yours sincerely,

Susan Slawson

ZARETT | REHAB | FITNESS

Taking care of your body is a priority that is largely in your control. You have the ability to make decisions that improve your overall well-being.

Recovering from surgery or injury is an example. There are many options for rehabbing. But there is only one Zarett Rehab & Fitness.

Joe Zarett and his team take a more comprehensive approach to rehab. It's a formula for your success that is 1:1. In other words, an individually created process to rebuild your muscles and get you back to your healthy lifestyle. Zarett believes in manual muscle therapy and targeted exercises, guided by the best physical therapists and exercise physiologists in the region. And now—in additional to our full suite of wellness services—you can also improve how you feel with new services like dry needling and cupping.

Once you are fully recovered from your injury, it's easy to stay and exercise weekly at Zarett. The approach is the same 1:1 scripted workout, followed by manual therapy, stretching, and flexibility work.

At Zarett, you feel the level of care when you arrive at our facility. And then you experience it. For rehab, why would you choose anywhere else?

Come to the Regatta, Stay for Philly

If you've never been to Philadelphia our sponsor, Visit Philly, has a short list of must do's…below are just a few.

Rocky Steps
Climb the famous Rocky steps and view the Rocky Statue located on the east side of the iconic Philadelphia Museum of Art, two of the most essential things to do in Philadelphia.

Outside the Philadelphia Museum of Art
2600 Benjamin Franklin Parkway.

Philadelphia Cheesesteaks
Philadelphia's favorite food. Lots of local spots cook up a great cheesesteak but for an iconic Philly experience visit the intersection of South 9th Street and Passyunk Avenue to taste Geno's Steaks and Pat's King of Steaks. And, maybe stop at 4th & South Streets where you can try Jim's. So many choices …so little time!

Independence Hall
In 1776, the Founding Fathers signed the Declaration of Independence at Independence Hall.Just 11 years later -representatives from a dozen states met there to lay the framework for the U.S.Constitution. Today this is an UNESCO World Heritage Site and is the centerpiece of Independence National Historical Park.
Where: Independence Hall. 520 Chestnut Street

Reading Terminal Market, since 1893
One of America's oldest and largest public markets, home to 80 independently-owned local merchants offering a wide array of prepared foods including Philly cheesesteaks, Italian hoagies, Pennsylvania Dutch fare, and the city's widest variety of ethnic foods under one roof. Also find an incredible selection of produce, meat, seafood, cheese, baked goods, confections, flowers, kitchenware, and jewelry.

Point Trophies

In celebration of its 40th Anniversary in 2010, the Head of the Schuylkill Regatta instituted Points Trophy competitions in four categories: High School, College, Open and Masters. The Points Trophies are awarded annually in these categories to the teams/clubs that accumulate the most points for 1st, 2nd and 3rd place finishes over the competitive two-days of racing.

HOW OARSMEN HELPED WIN THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

BY

JIM DIETZ

Washington Crossing the Delaware
Emanuel Leutz

Metropolitan Museum

IN THE 1770'S CALEB BREWSTER was a member of the "Culper Spy Ring" during the Revolutionary War. Caleb reported both directly to General George Washington and through Major Benjamin Tallmadge. Caleb would row whaleboats at night in the cover of darkness across Long Island Sound with valuable information coming from Long Island's main spies and those in New York city about British troop and naval movements in the area. He was smuggling as well as engaging in various military missions. His crews consisted of fellow oarsmen and half brothers chosen specifically by him. When some of these men were called into service in the regular colonial army it endangered the success of these valuable spy missions. General Washington interceded returning these men to the boats and duty they were best suited, showing the importance he felt in this spy mission.

Brewster also sent a direct message of his own through the Culper spy channel that describe flat-bottom boats being built in New York city that could be used to ferry troupes, and Loyalist privateers being outfitted at the time. This was valuable information which would be used by Washington in the very near future.

The British dealt a series of devastating blows to the fledgling Patriot army from August through December, nearly destroying George Washington's forces. In many ways, it was Colonel John Glover, using expert seamanship, military leadership, and pure grit, who helped to save the American independence movement in those beginning days of the revolution.

The Battle of Brooklyn on August 27, also known as the battle of Long Island or Battle of Brooklyn Heights was the first major battle of the American Revolution and largest in terms of participants and casualties. Lord Howe and his 20,000 British troops outmaneuvered and outflanked the smaller American Continental army, trapping Washington on the tip of Brooklyn Heights with his back to the East River.

The battle ended in defeat for General Washington but the real story is what transpired next. Washington in desperation sent a letter to General William Heath who was in Kings Bridge on the Harlem River to send every flat-bottom boat and sloop without delay. It was Colonel John Glover and his fisherman from Marblehead Massachusetts who would save the day. If not for a heavy fog that arose that evening, the British Army would have totally destroyed Washington's army. The fog would give Washington a chance for retreat. Had Washington's army been annihilated that would have been the end to the revolution. However, it was the daring retreat by boat and the oarsmen that manned them later that night that has been seen by some historians as one of General Washington's greatest military accomplishments. The same flat-bottom boats as described by Caleb Brewster previously, were able to make numerous trips across the East River escaping certain defeat.

It was John Glover's 21st regiment, or 'Marblehead Mariners' that performed that extraordinary feat. At 5 o'clock in the morning he and his regiment crossed to Brooklyn from Manhattan. Glover and his fisherman-soldiers were able to complete the evacuation of Washington's 9,000 men, field pieces, heavy ordinance, and all ammunition, as well as horses, cattle and provisions. All this was accomplished in nine hours with oars muffled against the splashing of water and excessive noise.

This rescued army then moved to Valley Forge. Washington feared that the British and Hessian mercenaries would attack his encampment later that winter, when the Delaware River froze and the British could move their army safely across.

On December 25-26, 1776 after being rowed across the Delaware River, Washington would have his first major victory against the British forces. This surprise, night time winter attack was thought to be unheard of in military strategy of that time. Some Generals feared the ice flows on the Delaware river more than the enemy as they ferried horses, canons and thousands of men to the ensuing battle.

The boats were operated by experienced watermen, including now Brigadier General John Glover's 21st Massachusetts Regiment from Marblehead, a company of experienced oarsmen and seamen from Massachusetts.

The Hessian auxiliaries garrison at Trenton was routed after a brief battle, with negligible losses to the Americans. The battle significantly boosted the continental army's waning morale, and inspired reenlistment. It was a turning point in the war.

There are many more references during the war which describe oarsmen ferrying men, material and equipment off and onto ships. A fact of life back then was that everything depended on seamen and oarsmen of all sorts to get the job done. They were an indispensable part of life!

Preserving Glories Past

By Dotty Brown

(This is an abridged version of a story published in the October issue of Rowing News)

ROWERS JUST WANT TO GET OUT ON THE WATER AND ROW. They want to work out. To race. Meanwhile, the pages of old minute books, stored in the back of boathouse closets, fade and turn brown. Logbooks pile up in plastic bins. Banners get eaten by moths. Trophies tarnish and dent.

In Philadelphia, a small group of rowing-history buffs are fighting against neglect and the ravages of time. At the finish line after years of effort is a digital rowing museum that is documenting thousands of the sport's historic artifacts.

The Rowing History Project showcases minute books, trophies, medals, photos, news articles, and videos previously hidden from public view. Illustrated stories take visitors inside moments of rowing history and the people who made them happen.

The museum's initial focus is on the clubs of Philadelphia's Boathouse Row and private collections, including the 3,000-plus items amassed by rowing historian Bill Miller. But the museum's goal is to become a national or even international hub.

"Any boat club, school, or organization could upload to it," said Chris Doyle of the Pennsylvania Barge Club. "Our big contribution is a national platform for rowing history."

The Rowing History Project (RHP) began as alarms went off for a few history-minded rowers, including myself. The shock for me came a decade ago while researching my book, Boathouse Row. On my dining-room table was an 1890s minute book of the Vesper Boat Club loaned to me by a rower who was storing it in her house because Vesper didn't know what to do with it. Its brown leather cover was dried and flaking, its binder cracked. I paged through it tenderly, awed by the elegant cursive that told long-forgotten stories. Afterward, I wrapped it in plastic wrap to hold its pieces together.

Hilary Langer of the Vesper Boat Club was dismayed when he found trophies, plaques and documents stashed in crannies of the Vesper Boat Club. He removed about 1,000 items to a location where they could be organized Photo by Dotty Brown

Others, including Rick Stehlik of the Malta Boat Club and Henry Hauptfuhrer of the Bachelors Barge Club, also worried. What other treasures were moldering in the crannies of Philadelphia's 19th-century boathouses?

In 2018, hoping to wake up Boathouse Row to the imminent loss of its history, Stehlik and Hauptfuhrer led about a half dozen concerned rowers on a tour of the Malta and Bachelors clubhouses and Bachelors' upriver social venue, The Button.

"The quantity of stuff is so great, it could fill an entire museum—and many wish a rowing museum could be launched in Philadelphia," I wrote afterward on my blog.

At first, our idea was to alert the clubs to their orphaned artifacts and urge them to find ways to store them properly.

But little happened until Covid struck in 2020—the same year the Head of the Schuylkill Regatta (HOSR) had planned to celebrate its 50th anniversary. The shutdown of the regatta was actually the starting gun for the idea of a digital museum though we didn't know it then.

With the regatta canceled, HOSR president Ellen Carver and executive director Jennifer Wesson came up with "Fifty Years, Fifty Stories"— monthly Zooms to bring rowing history to light and keep the landlocked rowing community together.

They invited the Row's band of historians to plan the story hours. And so began the first of hundreds of brainstorming meetings, every Friday at 11 a.m., that continue even today.

Increasingly, conversation at the Friday meetings turned to concern about the Row's artifacts. Some clubs had put old paper documents into temperature-controlled archives at institutions such as the Historical Society of Pennsylvania and the Independence Seaport Museum, but the clubs had so much more—trophies, plaques, medals, paintings, photos, and news clippings.

The group quickly dismissed the idea of a stand-alone museum. Filling it would be easy, but where to get the millions to build and staff it? Besides, rowing museums were failing. In 2014, the Mystic Seaport Museum closed a rowing exhibit, with items from the collections of Tom Weil and Bill Miller relegated to storage.

Our goal became clear during the HOSR story hour of Feb. 23, 2023. That night, collector Tom Weil, who had helped launch the River & Rowing Museum at Henley, revealed that it was "struggling."

"Go with digitalization," he said. "Have an online presence."

At the same time, the group was jolted into action further by a discovery at the Vesper Boat Club. Hilary Langer had gone into the recesses of the boathouse to inspect failing air handlers.

"I couldn't get to them because I discovered that trophies, plaques, all this heavy stuff, were in boxes piled up on top of them, crushing each other," the former club president said.

"I was so scared. We were so focused on rowing and operating a very, very complicated operation with masters, lightweights, women, heavyweights, juniors, high schools, that all this stuff was forgotten and neglected."

Reaching into every cranny and cubbyhole, he pulled out moth-eaten banners, dozens of regatta plaques, some awarded to John B. Kelly, Sr. and other Olympians of the 1920s—a total of nearly 1,000 items. And under a desk in the boathouse office, still encased in my plastic wrap, he found Vesper's 1890s minute book.

At a loss about what to do, he reached out to the story-hours group. Spurred by the Vesper crisis, the HOSR published a call to action on its website in August 2023: Preserve the objects, make them accessible to the public and create "a virtual haven for artifacts."

But how to do that? What software and technology? How much would it cost? And would the HOSR still host the effort?

Years before, Carver, a history buff herself, had done a preliminary inventory of Vesper's holdings. She believed it was within the HOSR's purview to support a digital rowing museum. "The HOSR always said we're more than a regatta," Carver explained. Its mission statement states that it works "year-round to give back to the community … lead efforts in sustainability … be stewards of our river … be good neighbors, supporting local businesses, organizations, and endeavors."

Wesson added, "We stood at a point in time with a real opportunity. It just made sense that with a group who were so knowledgeable and so passionate we could build something that had a home and have staying power."

Most members of the story-hours group had been competitive rowers, disciplined and determined. They also brought to this new challenge a constellation of career skills—management, architecture, engineering, technology, design, journalism.

Doyle, who had overseen systems development for Mercedes-Benz USA, led the technical side of the project. His first goal was to research a platform for our digital museum. With input from an archivist and technology consultant, we settled on Omeka, a web-publishing platform that is used by museums. Plus, it is free. After years of weekly meetings, we had yet to spend a penny. But having engaged professionals, we now needed money. HOSR contributed $5,000, and its board amended its nonprofit charter to include the RHP, opening the door to tax-deductible donations.

How You Can Join in

Tony Schneider—a masters rower at Vesper, HOSR board member, and supporter of the urban youth program Philadelphia City Rowing—provided seed funding. Members of the story- hours group also contributed.

The plan was to use Vesper's inventory as a "proof of concept." If its images and data could upload to our website, the Rowing History Project would be a go.

Langer had carted hundreds of items, including photos, wooden plaques, silver trophies, logbooks and more, to the sprawling clothing factory of Boathouse Sports, where owner and Olympian John Strotbeck offered space.

Beginning in April 2024, volunteers zigzagged past clattering sewing machines to inventory the trove pulled out of Vesper. Each item was entered into a spreadsheet.

With the press of a button at 11 a.m. on Sept. 26, 2024, Vesper's artifacts were instantly visible and searchable. We were on our way—if we could convince other clubs to join in.

Week after week through this spring and summer, our team visited the clubs of Boathouse Row to teach members how to photograph and record their collections. After years of neglect, no club wanted to be left out.

As the Rowing History Project officially launches on October 1, nearly all the clubs of Boathouse Row and several private collections are represented, though many artifacts have yet to be uploaded. Fragile minutes and logbooks may require professional scanning, at upward of $1,200 each.

Langer, who has spent hundreds of hours getting Vesper's collection organized, sees his club's commitment and his personal effort as well worth it.

It's a way "to build a bridge between the racing club we have always been and always will be and an appreciation by club members of the importance of the past, of those who came before us."

In Loving Memory

Richard E. Dougert

July 17, 1947 – January 23, 2026

The Head of the Schuylkill Regatta fondly remembers Richard E. Dougert, our former Chief Referee, whose dedication, unwavering leadership, and love of the sport left a lasting mark on our regatta and the entire rowing community.

We are grateful for his many years of service, his steady presence on the Schuylkill, and the countless ways he helped uphold the spirit and traditions of our sport.

His contributions will long be remembered, and his presence deeply missed.

Richard E. Dougert Referee Scholarship

In honor of Rich, our longtime friend, the HOSR is proud to announce the Richard E. Dougert Referee Scholarship.

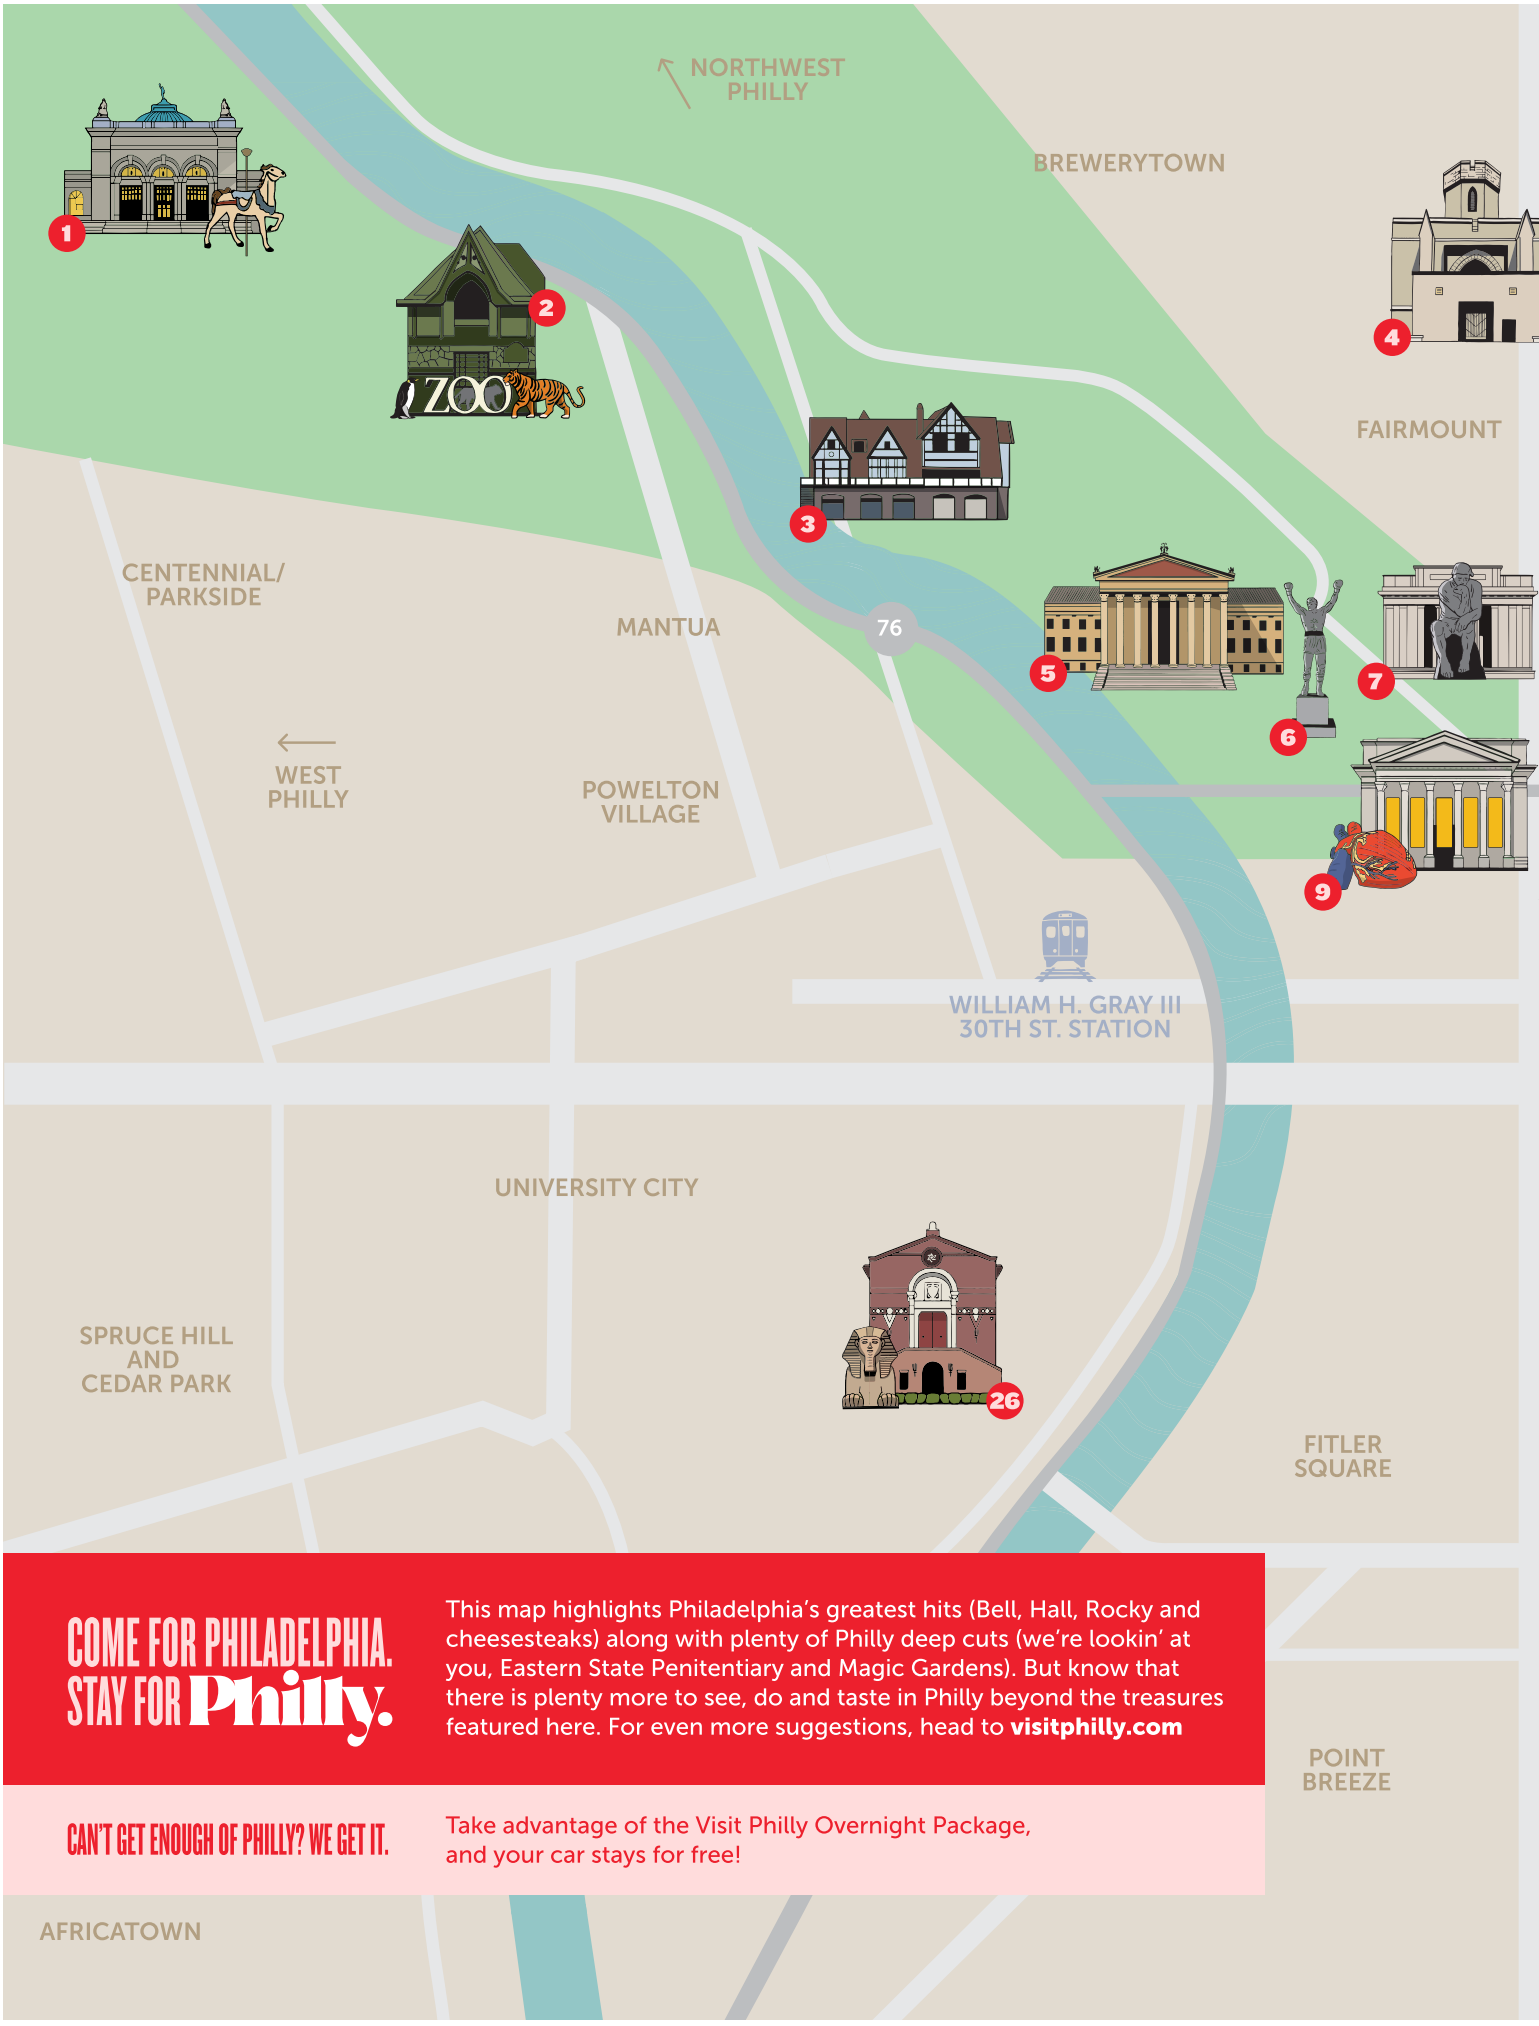

Established in Rich's memory, this scholarship will help offset the costs associated with becoming a new rowing referee—encouraging the next generation to serve the sport with the same dedication, integrity, and commitment that Rich brought to rowing throughout his life. Through every new referee this scholarship helps welcome to the sport, Rich's legacy will continue for years to come. Applications will be available at www.hosr.org in February 2027.

With heartfelt appreciation and gratitude to our 2026 referees who traveled from across the country to share their time, expertise, and dedication to the Head of the Schuylkill Regatta. Your commitment helps make this event possible, and we are truly grateful for all you do.

A FIELD GUIDE TO THE HOSR

By Rich Phillips/ Illustrated by Signe Wilkinson

WELCOME TO THE 2026 HEAD OF THE SCHUYLKILL REGATTA! Over the next few days, thousands of people will be wandering the shores of one of the most beautiful rivers in the world. To the casual observer, some of them may seem difficult to understand. For that reason and in the pursuit of science, I present to you the Field Guide to the Head of the Schuylkill River. My hope is that by the end you will be able to spot certain archetypes, and most importantly know what to do if you encounter one in the wild.

1.) THE HIGH SCHOOL ROWER.

Highly energetic, omnivorous creatures, they are also noisy, so they're easily spotted. They hunt in packs. They started rowing anywhere between 18 months and 18 minutes ago and are recognizable by the fact that they will remain in some kind of team kit from Friday morning until Sunday evening.
What to say if you encounter one: "Nice onesie."

2.) THE HIGH SCHOOL COACH.

True devotees of the sport. You can generally find them near a trailer, trying to get a group of teenagers to move an incredibly fragile (and expensive) 60 foot boat weighing 300 pounds from a rack ten feet in the air, down on to stretchers that have recently been misplaced. Talented and hard-working. Their work is about to be defined by the performance of a group of kids whom they met anywhere between 18 months and 18 minutes ago (see "High School Rower" above).
What to say if you encounter one: "Good luck, coach." But give them a look to indicate that by "luck" you also mean "finding all of those kids and getting them safely back on the bus at the end of the day."

3.) THE COXSWAIN.

CEO's in training. The coxswains' job is to sit and be propelled by the exhausting labor of others, while they opine on the quality and vigor of such labor, and encouraging more. They have the leadership skills of a Navy Seal and the intensity of an extra in Braveheart.
What to say if you encounter one: "am I doing this right?" You can ask this question regardless of what you are doing. They will have an opinion.

4.) THE REFEREE.

Trustworthy and reliable. These good people are responsible for making sure hundreds upon hundreds of boats actually complete the race in a fair way. They are constantly beset by deep, existential questions like "how much swearing between boats is too much swearing between boats?" and "do matching rubber ducky shirts constitute a 'uniform'?"
What to say if you encounter one: "I was impeded." Don't worry about whether or not you actually were impeded. Indeed you can say this even if you aren't rowing.

5.) THE RACE ORGANIZER.

By far the most stressed out person on the river this weekend. All the people training and traveling to compete are depending on this one person to put on a race for thousands of people, in hundreds of boats, in late fall weather, on the water, with volunteer help and a shoestring budget. They are recognizable because there will be about a dozen people around them all weekend long, each with a crisis that the director absolutely needs to know about and solve, right now.
What not to say if you encounter one: "how much are they paying you?"

6.) THE PARENT.

Parents tend to fall into two distinct categories. The first are those who never rowed themselves. Have sympathy. They may still not understand why their child has chosen a sport that requires that child (and, by extension, their parents) to get up before dawn and get to a boathouse for training. The second are those who did row. You can usually spot these good folks somewhere near their kid's coach, offering helpful advice and counsel.
What to say if you encounter one: "Nice lemon bars! Are there more?"

7.) THE MASTERS ROWER.

Perhaps the happiest bunch of rowers this weekend. They will likely be talking about how they did in a regatta that took place during the Reagan administration, but somehow be able to tell you about every aspect of the race. Do not let the smiles fool you. They are also quietly looking around at people they have been racing against for decades, and plotting revenge. They will tell you that it's all for fun now, and they just want to have a good race. Do not believe them.
What not to say if you encounter one: "When do you get to move up to the next age group?"

JADA SMITH

First Christopher Blackwall Scholarship Recipient

The Head of the Schuylkill Regatta (HOSR) announces Jada Smith, Ocean City High School is the inaugural recipient of the Christopher Blackwall Scholarship, a new annual award established to honor the legacy of longtime regatta leader Christopher Blackwall and to support the next generation of scholar-athletes.

Selected from a competitive pool of applicants from across the region, Smith distinguished herself through her academic excellence, athletic achievement and exceptional commitment to personal growth — the core values that define the scholarship.

The $2,500 scholarship provides financial support toward the recipient's first year of college, university, or trade school, helping remove barriers and open pathways to future success. In response to being awarded the scholarship, Jada wrote, "The HOSR's generosity and support mean a great deal to me and will help me as I begin my college journey. I am incredibly grateful to have been selected for this scholarship.

'Jada embodies the spirit of dedication, resilience, and leadership that Christopher Blackwall championed throughout his decades of service to the rowing community,' said Jennifer Wesson, Executive Director of the Head of the Schuylkill Regatta. 'We are honored to recognize her achievements and excited to support her continued academic and athletic journey.'

Smith, a standout rower and student leader at Ocean City High School, Ocean City NJ, plans to continue rowing at the collegiate level — a commitment that aligns closely with the scholarship's mission to uplift young athletes who demonstrate passion for the sport. Jada's personal statement read, 'Rowing gives me more than strength and endurance, it gives me the confidence to move through life knowing I am capable of achieving whatever I set my mind to.'

The scholarship will be formally presented during the 2026 Head of the Schuylkill Regatta.

About the Christopher Blackwall Scholarship

Established in honor of Christopher Blackwall's more than 30 years of leadership at the HOSR, the scholarship recognizes high school seniors who excel academically, contribute meaningfully to their communities, and demonstrate a strong commitment to personal growth. Special consideration is given to students who plan to row in college. Applications for next year's scholarship will be available in January 2027.
